Highlighting the importance of early literacy development.

"No, Tess. This is a taxi."

Pennsylvania One Book, Every Young Child Reading Initiative.

The Bus for Us, a beautiful picture book, by author and illustrator Suzanne Bloom for children ages 3- 6 is Pennsylvania's One Book, Every Young Child 2013 selection.

Tess is excited. Today is her first day of school, and her very first ride on a school bus. Waiting at the bus stop with her older friend Gus, Tess eagerly asks, "Is this the bus for us, Gus?" as each vehicle passes by. From fire engine to front loader, Suzanne Bloom introduces young readers to a variety of vehicles through a simple text and spirited illustrations.

This is the eighth year of this valuable program that highlights the importance of early literacy development in preschoolers. In its inaugural year, the One Book, Every Young Child program won the coveted, national John Cotton Dana Library Public Relations Award.

The collaborating agencies all support early childhood literacy efforts and emphasizing the importance of reading early and often to children, as well as engaging them in conversation and other activities around books. They have worked together to develop this multi-faceted program which is accessible to all areas and populations of the state.
